The Harder They Come

6pm • Tuesday, February 17
Neil Morgan Auditorium

Blessed with one the best soundtracks ever put on film, this gritty and razor sharp vision of working class life in Jamaica is a ground-breaking film that made the late Jimmy Cliff an icon. Shot in Jamaica at the dawn of the blaxploitation era, The Harder They Come contributed to both an international Black popular culture and worldwide Black independent film movement.

San Diego Mesa College professor of Black Studies Mychal Odom will host a special Q&A after the film.
