

This is the Mission Valley Library. I am going to visit it.

When I come inside the library, I will try to use my quiet voice, and I will walk.

There is a Circulation Desk. This is where we can return books and movies that belong to the library. There are people there to help me find things and to answer questions.

I will go to the Community Room.

I will see Miss Marika there. She is the Children's Librarian.

We are going to an event where I can learn about tide pool animals. I will learn how to act like a tide pool animal too. This may feel a bit silly.

I will be able to touch some tide pool animals if I am very gentle.

If I feel overwhelmed or need a break, my adult can take me to the Reading Room.

I can go back to the Community Room if I feel better.

After the program, I can go to the Children's Area. There are puzzles and toys there. I can play with them, but they will stay at the library when I leave.

If my adult says it's OK, I can choose some books or movies to check out and take home for a while.

I can walk around the rest of the library. It has books and movies for adults, and a balcony that I can get to using the stairs or the elevator.

It's very important not to lean over the glass balcony wall.

Before I leave, I can check out any books or movies we are taking home with the checkout machines.

These can be fun to use.

It's time to go! I will use my quiet voice to say goodbye, and I will stay close to my adult while we walk out to the parking lot.
